The Speaker

The Liberal Review.

NEW SERIES, VOL. IX., No. 214.] SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1903. PRICE 6D.

"The Times" has entire control of the sale of the Encyclopædia Britannica, and will, after December 19, supply copies through Booksellers only.

ABSOLUTE TERMINATION of the SALE of the ENCYCLOPÆDIA BRITANNICA by "The Times." (35 Vols.)

To-day: Less than Half-price.—In a few weeks: the Full Catalogue Price, which is £57, in cloth binding.

The offer of "The Times" to supply the Encyclopædia Britannica to the public at half price, and for instalment payments, will be withdrawn on December 19th.

On that date all the special arrangements for the sale of the Encyclopædia Britannica will come to an end absolutely, and the work will thereafter be sold, as it was before "The Times" took it in hand, by booksellers only, in the ordinary course of trade. The lowest price will then be £57 (net) for the cloth binding—more than double the present price. For the time being subscriptions will still be accepted by "The Times" at the half price; and if you are prompt you may still avail yourself of the serial payment system, by which you obtain immediate possession of the volumes for a trifling sum and complete the purchase by only twenty-seven small monthly payments.

PRICE TO BE MORE THAN DOUBLED AFTER DECEMBER 19th.

The subscriber who procures the Encyclopædia Britannica to-day is not only buying something that is intrinsically worth more than its present price, something for which his neighbours will soon be paying more, but he is buying something that he could, if he chose, sell again for probably double what it cost him. For his copy, when he has only made one or two monthly payments, will have become, by reason of the change of price, worth, even at second-hand, much more than the price at which "The Times" offers it to-day.

YOU CAN ONLY HOPE TO BE IN TIME IF YOU ATTEND TO THIS AT ONCE.

This Inquiry Form can be sent in an open envelope for ½d., and should be addressed to

The MANAGER,
"The Times,"
Publication Department,
Printing House Square,
London, E.C.

Please send me full particulars of the offer which is to close on December 19th, and the illustrated book describing the recently completed Encyclopædia Britannica. This book I will return to you within three days of its receipt, in the stamped and addressed cover you enclose with it.

IMPORTANT NEW WORK ON THE FAR EAST BY AN EMINENT AUTHORITY.

VOLS. I.—IV. NOW READY.

Japan and China:

Their History, Arts, Sciences, Manners, Customs, Laws, Religions, and Literature.

By CAPTAIN F. BRINKLEY,

Many years Special Correspondent of The Times at Tokyo.

Illustrated with over One Hundred Full-Page Reproductions in Colour, and many others in Black and White.

In commencing the issue of this important and beautiful work on a subject of absorbing interest at the present moment. Messrs. Jack beg to draw the attention of the public to the fact that only a limited edition has been produced, and as the work is being entensively advertised it is not likely that copies will be long available. Captain Brinkley is the greatest living authority on Japan and China, and his knowledge is intimate and fully abreast of these rapidly moving times. There is also the additional recommendation that he is the acknowledged authority on the Arts of Japan, including Ceramics Flower arrangements, &c., which are fully treated in the work.

To be published in 12 volumes, demy 8vo, cloth, gilt tops, at 14/- per volume net. The Library Edition is strictly limited to 500 numbered copies. An Edition de Luxe of 35 copies, printed on Japanese Vellum, with extra Plates on Chinese Silk, is offered at £25 4s. net per copy. Two volumes will be published each month.

A Prospectus giving detailed Table of Contents and List of Illustrations will be sent on application.

Die Nation hat während ihres 17 jährigen Bestehens die liberale Weltanschauung auf allen Gebieten des öffenslichen Lebens vertreten. Sie bringt ausschliefslich Original artikel aus der Feder hervorragender Schriftsteller, Gelehrten, Politiker. Sie schliesst in den Kreis ihrer Besprechung nicht bloss die Tagesfragen der Politik und die Probleme der Volkswirthschaft, sondern auch bedeutende Erscheinungen der Wissenschaft, der bildenden Kunst, des Theaters und der schönen Litteratur ein. Sie bringt philosophische Essays, biographische Skizzen, satirische Glossen zur Zeitgeschichte und kurze Erzählungen. In den handelspolitischen Kämpfen der Gegenwart nimmt die "NATION" als energische Vorkämpferin der Handelsvertragspolitik eine hervorragende Stellung ein.

DWELLERS IN THE HILLS. By MELVILLE D. POST. New Edition, crown 8vo, cloth extra, 3s. 6d.
This is a tale of ranch life and the vital risks which had to be taken by those whose life was passed in the old-time West Virginia cattle country. It is a strange life and a strange tale, the days of his youth reviewed by a grown man. But strange and out of the past as these echoes may seem, Mr. Post lives them again in his book as he did in the flesh. Modern writers have gone far in realising life in words, but this story will yield to few in its reality and freshness, and that whether the pictures be of man or his horse or both. The book is alive, and for those who are alive.

of us possess in some measure will find plenty in it to interest and entertain.

The Fortnightly Review for November is an excellent and varied number. The first three articles are all more or less about the fiscal question. In the first "Autonomous" points out that the Government intend Protection of the most thorough kind though they lack the courage to acknowledge it, even to themselves; and Protection, he says, means administrative despotism or else jobbery and boodling in the worst forms. In the second "Culchas" is frankly dazzled by Mr. Chamberlain's energy: "He is the one living Englishman who interests the world at large." His "success in the South African war" has chastened Anglophobia. He has delivered us from the tutelage of Germany; and so on, and so on. Mr. L. L. Price is a more philosophic advocate of Protection, though he does not get beyond generalities, and confesses finally that "the positive arguments for a change in our fiscal system still were to be advanced and established"—and this after all Mr. Chamberlain's speeches! Mr. Chesterton has a brilliant article on the Political Poetry of Mr. William Watson. "Mr. Watson," he says, "is a typical Englishman in his thought and his art; while Mr. Kipling, the Imperialist, writes and thinks like a French decadent." Also, Mr. Watson's poetry is characteristic of Democracy, which is always for what is stately and abstract and austere in art. The literary weapon of popular government has always been classic literature. If we want exhilarating vulgarity we go to good Conservatives like Aristophanes. Mr. Lang writes on "Tribe and Family, and their Origin." He believes with Darwin that man's ancestor was a lonely and jealous animal and that first the family and then the tribe were developed out of the conflict between his jealousies and his needs. The other theory, that our ancestors lived promiscuously in herds, and that these herds were the origin of tribes, will not, he says, explain the evolution of the family. Miss Elizabeth Robins has an amusing article on the Alaska Boundary, containing "some opinions of those who cross it" reported in the form of dialogue. Mr. Lewis Melville writes about Thackeray as a critic of books. He did not care much for the great things of literature, and always rather took the point of view one would expect to find in Punch. In an article on "The Question of Korea," Mr. Alfred Stead says that Japan will not fight Russia over Manchuria, but will, if necessary, over Korea. Mr. Frederic Harrison's romance continues.

The most attractive and important article in the current number of the Book Monthly is one entitled "Byron and the Murrays," in which many new lights are thrown on the story of the poet's relations with the great publishing firm. This is all the more timely because the final volume in their splendid new edition of Byron is almost ready. Well worth reading, also, are an estimate of "Mr. Kipling as Poet," by Mr. Arthur Waugh, an inquiry into the question of "Is Bookselling so Bad?" (the answer given is on the whole reassuring to booksellers), with the dictum that a war or a general election is the event which has the worst effect on the book trade. The month's "London Letter" contains an excellent account of the way in which the huge first edition of the Life of Gladstone was dispersed over the country by Messrs. Macmillan in the early hours of Friday, October 9, in a stream which flowed so steadily and strongly that even the London circulating libraries had labelled their copies and were delivering them to subscribers by ten o'clock the same morning.

The Monthly Review contains a very notable article by Mr. Winston Churchill, to which we drew attention in a leading article last week. The number also contains an article on Macedonia, by Sir Henry Drummond Wolff, which is well worth reading, and an excellent article on garden cities, by Mr. Neville.

SMITH, ELDER, AND CO.'S PUBLICATIONS.

A GUIDE TO THE DICTIONARY OF NATIONAL BIOGRAPHY.

ATHENÆUM.—"The appearance of this Supplement to the 'Dictionary of National Biography' puts the coping-stone upon a work which is justly regarded as a national possession. . . . We can, indeed, conceive no volume of reference more indispensable to the scholar, literary man, the historian, and the journalist."

In One Volume of 1,464 pages, royal 8vo, 25s. net, in cloth; or 32s. net in half-morocco.

DICTIONARY OF NATIONAL BIOGRAPHY INDEX AND EPITOME.

EDITED BY SIDNEY LEE.

DAILY CHRONICLE.—"Some books we commit to the consideration of our readers with pleasure, some with confidence; but the acquisition of this work recommends itself to any educated man or woman, not otherwise provided, as something more than a duty, as a privilege, a certificate of English citizenship."

SPECTATOR.—"This EPITOME will supply, and more than supply, the place of the ordinary 'biographical dictionary.' It is far more copious, even in its abridged form, than any we know of. It is not every house that can afford, or every library that can accommodate, the sixty-six volumes of the Dictionary, but this may be welcome anywhere."

NOTE.—Copies of the "INDEX AND EPITOME" in the alternative bindings can be seen at the principal Booksellers in London and in the country.

A Prospectus of the "DICTIONARY" and of the "INDEX AND EPITOME" post free on application.

NEW SIX-SHILLING NOVELS BY POPULAR AUTHORS.

THE HONOURABLE MOLLY.

BY KATHARINE TYNAN.

Outlook: "An agreeable lively tale of Irish County Society, with fragrant love passages."

THE SECRET IN THE HILL.

BY BERNARD E. J. CAPES.

Glasgow Herald: "A thrilling romance of hidden treasure. . . . Infused with all the fire and colour of genuine romance."

ROMANCE: A NOVEL.

By JOSEPH CONRAD and FORD MADOX HUEFFER.

Athenæum.—"'ROMANCE' is a brilliant thing, vivid and as full of the trappings of romance as an egg is of meat."

Sketch.—"It is pleasant to be able to praise with freedom and keen appreciation, to say of a book that it is admirable in theme and treatment, that it contains a good story well told, and holds the reader in a grip that is never relaxed. All this and more can be said for 'Romance.'"

Outlook.—"'ROMANCE: A NOVEL,' Mr. Conrad calls the latest and best of his stories—or his and his colleague's—since Mr. Hueffer's name is on the title page—but does not go on to say that it is one of the best romances his readers are likely to remember. We are glad to be able to say that for him. . . . Here is the real thing—here are all the right things."
